Excursion 1: Tour to Airbus Production Plant Hamburg Finkenwerder

After a short ferryboat trip across the river Elbe, we are going to visit the headquarters of Airbus/Germany. Airbus is a leading aircraft manufacturer with the most modern and comprehensive aircraft family to be found. The production facilities in Hamburg carry out the complete interior furnishing of the cabins and the painting of the new A380, the largest passenger aircraft in the world.

After the visit, you can decide whether to return directly to DESY by bus via the Köhlbrand bridge and enjoy a marvellous view over the harbour and Hamburg, or by boat to the station Landungsbrücken in the centre of the Hamburg city harbour.

Excursion 2: Tour to Container Terminal Face to Face with Giants A Harbour with a Difference

This is a three-hour bus tour through the Hamburg harbour. The round tour first brings us to the city where the old parts of the harbour and warehouses can be seen. After a tremendous outlook from the Köhlbrand Bridge the bus drives us through the modern cargo harbour and container terminal. This is a restricted area and can only be visited with authority permission and with specially equipped busses. For security reasons passengers are only allowed to exit during the coffee break at the Seamen's mission "Duckdalben".

The port of Hamburg is one of the leading ports in the world. So, visiting the city, a harbour-cruise is a must. There are some highly unusual sights to be seen on the land side of Hamburg harbour.

The first part of the tour is a journey through time that takes us back over 800 years of the port's history. The days of conventional cargo handling come to life once more: Nikolaifleet (the cradle of the Port of Hamburg), Speicherstadt (the historic warehouse district), the so-called 50th-sheds (50er-Schuppen), a historical part of the harbour, built in the early years of the 19th century.

A view over the vast expanse of the port from almost 60 metres up, from the Köhlbrand Bridge, comes next—and suddenly we find ourselves back in the present. The modern, high-tech docklands offer a fascinating glimpse behind the scenes.

For security reasons, most parts of the port are highly restricted areas with no access to the public. In possession of a special permit, the bus rolls right up to the terminals. Slowly, the bewildering confusion of van carriers and reach stackers on Burchardkai crystallises into a smooth-running machine of filigree precision, and the interplay between automatic transport platforms moving as if by magic and fully automatic portal cranes in Altenwerder, to date the worlds most modern container terminal, becomes one great big logical, logistical whole.
